

Complete Customer Care

Mission-Focused Customer Service

For most federal government agencies, providing quality public service while keeping up with the demand for improved efficiencies, lower costs and the leveraging of new technologies can be challenging. To lighten your load, we offer complete customer care that supports your agency's mission. Customer care services from Xerox ensure that your constituents' needs are met in ways that are convenient for them.

From walk-in offices to simple websites and timely text messages, our care solutions support constituent choice. With a broad base of expertise and a flexible, responsive approach, we help governments deliver professional, sensitive, comprehensive customer service to citizens.

The Benefits We Provide

Selecting a private provider to deliver customer care on your agency's behalf can feel risky. After all, customer service representatives are the public face of the government, dealing directly with constituents.

Choosing a trusted, proven provider, however, can actually reduce your risk, by setting agreed-upon standards for performance. Other benefits include:

- Maximizing your professional staff – Use our staff to handle phone inquiries, and your caseworkers or other staff can spend more time focusing on tasks that require their expertise.
- Cost savings through efficiencies – Take the risk out of initial staffing and technology decisions. With a continuous improvement philosophy, our contact centers constantly integrate best practices that reduce overall costs.
- Enhanced service design for higher customer satisfaction – We'll help you design a service approach that incorporates both technology and process enhancements. For example, outbound messaging keeps customers informed of appointments, events and deadlines. And a well designed Interactive Voice Response (IVR) approach can significantly improve the customer experience.

Maximizing these benefits requires expertise built over time providing customer care on behalf of government clients like you.

Complete Customer Care

Our Range of Solutions

Our customer service and contact center operations range from full-scale, multi-client commercial contact centers to program-specific service components for federal, state, county and municipal contracts. While our operations vary according to specific clients needs, they all share the same goals: efficiency, cost-effectiveness, quality control and excellent customer service.

With extensive first-hand experience in contact center implementation and operation, we're ready for anything. During a recent human services contact center implementation, call volume quickly outpaced predictions. Our operation handled 300,000 calls in the first 20 days – without compromising service quality.
